EDUCATIONAL NOTES

QUIET REIGNS AT G. U. H. S.—B SENIORS RECEIVE CLASS PINS

By Walt. LeNoir Church

Earl Brown, who has charge of the High School Boys' Band, says that the pupils have all settled back to their ordinary work after the strenuous and arduous labors of preparing for the Variety Show, though that of itself was a liberal education.

So the Glendale Palace of Mind and Factory of Composite Ideas once more is in every-day working order, both teachers and pupils having experienced that mental and temperamental arousing from the monotony of the ordinary, which will make for better work during the remainder of the term.

Mrs. Gibson was very frank and sincere in her expressions of gratitude on behalf of her orchestra and others of her music pupils for the encouraging efforts of the News in their behalf, saying that it stimulated them all to higher efforts, so she as their instructor felt the good effects of it also.

There was talk of some celebration, said Earl Brown, on Washington's birthday, but it seems to have been abandoned, as coming too close after the festivities of last week. There may be a small party given by the seniors in the cafeteria this evening, followed by an impromptu program of entertainment, if they can get the auditorium.

At the Senior class meeting yesterday noon, committees were appointed to arrange for the Senior Class play, a melodrama, to be given the latter part of March. It bears the alluring title of "Amarylly of Clothes Line Alley." Look out for something intense.

At noon yesterday, also, the High School band, decided to have a pay assembly soon to raise money for their necessary expenses, for new music and other betterments. The band consists of 17 pieces, there being 2 flutes, 3 cornets (1 soloist), 5 clarionets (2 soloists), 2 trombones, 1 alto, 1 melophone, 2 drums. They are promised the outside help of one of the best players in Glendale, which the boys think will be of decided advantage in their training.

The eight "New Seniors" or "B Seniors," consisting of six girls and two boys, have just received their class pins, with which they are well pleased. The pins are engraved G. U. H. S., '18.

Miss Soper, their teacher, was presented with one of the pins in token of the class appreciation of her good work for and with them. That will be the first mid-year class graduated.

For their proposed entertainment they hope to get the Palace Grand theater.

Brown and Long of that class, with twenty-three other Glendale boys, are connected with the Tropico military company, which is to have an entertainment in the near future perhaps. They are eagerly expecting new uniforms and equipment now on the way.

The six girls and only two boys in that class shows what Earl manfully admitted when questioned: "The girls are making us hustle to keep up with them in our class work."

Some one remarked just before and shortly after the late presidential election: "The Atlantic coast for man's development; but the Pacific coast certainly appears to bring woman to the fore, as never before."

The third generation daughters of the Pioneers of California surely are very much in evidence along progressive lines of literature, art and practical business. Note their large proportion among the 2500 teachers in Los Angeles county and in the business directories.

Boys, the suffragettes will get you if you don't watch out.

And the type of man described as "Mrs. Joneses' husband" will be very much to the rear.

O. E. S. WILL ENTERTAIN

Glen Eyrie chapter, O. E. S., will entertain with a Martha Washington tea at Masonic temple on Thursday evening, their friends and the public being cordially invited. The evening will be confined entirely to an entertainment and a social time and their will be no dancing or cards. Among the entertainment features will be an Oxford minuet and other pretty fancy dances and songs by little Florence Rattray and several other favorite vocalists. A delightful evening is promised the Eastern Star members and their friends.

TRAINING THE YOUTH

PATRONS OF ADVENTIST SCHOOL ADVOCATE ADHERENCE TO BIBLE STANDARDS

Patrons of the Glendale Seventh-day Adventist church school held a Parent-Teachers' meeting last night at the residence of Mr. Byron Dart, 132 Jackson street. Mr. Dart is principal of the school, which is located at Third and Isabel streets.

Prof. M. E. Cady, educational secretary of Seventh-day Adventist church schools throughout the states of California, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and western Colorado, was present last night and spoke on "The Finished Product of Christian Education." He emphasized thoroughness, efficiency and strict adherence to Bible standards in denominational schools.

"The False and True in Education" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. Alexander Ritchie, in which she said that the study of infidel authors should not be brought into Seventh-day Adventist schools. She spoke of the study of history as essential, but said the reading of all fiction, whether a good moral is attached or not, is harmful, fostering a love for the unreal and for mere amusement, and a distaste for life's realities. Feeding the mind on the lighter, or so-called "high-class" fiction is like giving the inebriate the lighter drinks, she said. Books containing myths and fairy tales should not be read by our children, she added. "The widespread use of such books now is one of the devices of Satan. Never should books containing a perversion of truth be placed in the hands of our children. The time and energy which many spend in gaining a useless education should be spent in obtaining a training of actual value."

Paul Mason read a paper on "The Knowledge That Endures" and Mrs. J. G. Smith spoke on "The Essential Knowledge."

A violin solo by Miss Susine Wessels, accompanied by Prof. George B. Miller, was well received, they being obliged to respond to a hearty encore. Grace and Robert Tower rendered a piano duet and Miss Henrietta Hughes sang a soprano solo. A ladies' quartette also was part of the program. Pastor G. A. Snyder was present and delivered the invocation.

CENTRAL AVENUE CIVIC CENTER

A very splendid program has been prepared under the direction of Mrs. U. F. Newlin for the Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association benefit to be held in the auditorium of the Central avenue school on Saturday evening, February 24, at 8 o'clock. The proceeds are to be used to furnish the new reading and social rooms for the Central avenue civic center, and following the program the rooms will be thrown open to the public and refreshments will be served. The program to be presented is a very attractive one and will undoubtedly draw a large audience. Miss Margaret La Faye, a professional actress, will give reproductions of art and sculpture work and Mrs. Newlin has trained the children in a number of very beautiful tableaux and poses. The pictures will be presented in a large black frame and with the colored lights and the lovely costumes, which are to be worn, there is no doubt of an artistic treat being in store for those who attend. HIGHWAY MURDER

ELBERT DE MARCUS OF GLENDALE FOUND DEAD IN HIS CAR

W. Elbert De Marcus, a jitney bus driver of Glendale, was shot down while driving his Dodge Bros. touring car Tuesday night on the state highway between La Canada and La Crescenta.

It is supposed De Marcus left Glendale with his auto between 6 and 7 o'clock Tuesday evening for the purpose of conveying a passenger to La Canada, but thus far it is not positively known when he left Glendale on the trip, and no clue has been learned as to who the passengers were.

At about one o'clock Wednesday morning Mr. Jones, who has been a partner of Mr. De Marcus in the auto bus business and who resides in La Crescenta, was returning home and passed a car standing on the highway at the place De Marcus was found by him six hours later, but in the darkness and rain Mr. Jones did not recognize the car to be that of his partner. On his way to Glendale at about seven o'clock this Wednesday morning Mr. Jones came to the car in which Mr. De Marcus was seated cold in death, and upon examination it was found that death had been caused by bullets fired by some one back of the murdered man, the bullets entering the back of his head and passing out at different parts of his face. Death was likely instantaneous. The dead man occupied almost a natural position at the steering wheel and had his feet in position on the pedals.

The proper authorities were notified and the body was removed to the Pulliam Undertaking rooms, Glendale, where a coroner's inquest will be held to inquire further as to the cause of the young man's death.

The deceased was of quiet disposition and for a number of months made his home at the Thornycroft Farm, but for almost a year has been operating an auto bus with a stand on Brand boulevard near the Pacific Electric station.

He occupied rooms over the F. O. Moore store at 1008 West Broadway, Glendale. A brother and sister of the deceased reside in Los Angeles.

The strange murder of this young man is causing intense excitement in Glendale. The murder was likely committed by some one who committed the terrible crime for the purpose of getting the money he had on his person. All pockets of the murdered man had been turned inside out. It is hoped that the guilty persons may be found and given the severe punishment of which they are deserving.

THE BOND ELECTION

MEASURE CARRIED IN GLENDALE BY VERY SMALL MAJORITY

The vote on the flood control bond question was very light in the Glendale precincts Tuesday, the total vote being less than 600, when the voting population of Glendale is more than 4000. Probably there is no one able to explain the cause of lack of interest in a community that has been promised $128,000 of improvements on wash channels in and adjacent to Glendale. It would seem with prospects of so large a sum of money to be used for the purpose of local flood improvements every voter in Glendale should have been at the polls to cast a vote in favor of the issuing of these bonds.

Following is a statement of the vote in the various precincts of Glendale, Tropico and Casa Verdugo:

GLENDALE VOTE	YES	NO
Precinct No. 507, 622 West Third	68	35
Precinct No. 508, 129 So. Maryland	78	41
Precinct No. 509, 318 So. Brand	66	104
Precinct No. 510, 1117 Lomita avenue	58	47
Precinct No. 511, 102 West Colorado	26	57
	296	284
Casa Verdugo Vote	42	74
Tropico Vote	57	112

Soon after they returned they surprised their friends with the announcement of their wedding at a party given at the Willett home. But their friends decided they could not escape so easily so they came last night bringing many beautiful wedding gifts, delicious refreshments for the evening and spent a few jolly hours in song and dancing. Mr. Johnson is connected with the Wholesale Produce company of Glendale and Tropico and he and his bride have a wide circle of friends who are still showering them with congratulations and good wishes. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Severns, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. E. Gregg, Miss Carol Angus, Miss M. MAKE VOTING EASY

The Evening News editor does not belong to the chronic fault-finding class, and is always slow to criticise existing condition of things. However, it is right to call attention to the present system of conducting national, state and county elections without giving the place and time of holding these elections publicity in local newspapers. The voting places at Tuesday's bond election in Glendale were unknown to the general public. The plan of notifying by letter every voter where his voting place is, is a wise one and should not be discontinued, but unfortunately there are many voters who misplace these notification letters and when it comes to the day of the election these voters must depend upon some one who has the correct information as to location of all voting places.

On Tuesday there were many calls came to the Evening News office asking information as to the location of voting places in various sections of the city. Under present conditions the Evening News had no official way of being informed as to the location of the voting places. In a community of the population of Glendale there should be provided by the county officials a bureau of information in the City Hall or in a leading newspaper office, and such bureau of information should be provided with all data concerning boundaries of election precincts, polling places, etc.

The practice of changing polling places at almost every election tends to confuse voters as to the place they are expected to vote, and here is argument in favor of having the school houses in the community designated as the regular polling places.

People are slow to use their right of franchise and it should therefore be the duty of law-making bodies to encourage voters in every possible way to make voting easy for them.

WHAT POWER DEVELOPMENT MEANS TO THE WEST

The greatest steps in natural development of our country will be electrification of transcontinental and local railroads west of the Rocky mountains and introduction of electric smelters.

Increased efficiency in transportation and improved train service would mean reduction of cost of moving crops and raw materials, and electric smelters mean a greater saving of precious metals.

After the European war mining and smelting operations are going to be carried on smaller margins, and electric smelters are proving possibilities of metal production not formerly dreamed of.

The heads of four great transcontinental railroads recently took a trial trip over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul mountain divisions in Montana and realized what electric power means in railroad problems.

They found trains moved over heavy grades with wonderful ease, entire absence of smoke, dust, gas in tunnels, jerking of trains at starting or stopping, and speed and power increased fifty per cent.

There is abundant hydro-electric power, in some cases already developed and ready to be turned on, and mountain streams running to waste where it is not, while railroads burn oil and coal.

Is there anything more logical for development of the west and unlocking its mineral wealth and conserving its oil and coal, than early and rapid utilization of its unused electric power?

It would mean the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars if electrification of transcontinental and interstate railroads could be put over in the next five years.

It would mean the greatest expansion of electrical industry in that period and electricity would come into its own, and the west would get hundreds of electric smelters like those at Great Falls and Heroult.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society held an all-day meeting at the Presbyterian church Tuesday when a very interesting and entertaining program was provided for the morning and afternoon with a delicious luncheon served at noon by the hospitality committee under the able chairmanship of Mrs. W. S. Carmichael. Several special guests were in attendance from eastern sections. Officers were elected for the ensuing term in the afternoon, the new officers chosen being as follows: Mrs. M. P. Harrison, president; Mrs. John Horsch, vice president; Mrs. W. E. Edmonds, second vice president; Mrs. L. E. Sinclair, secretary; Mrs. E. D. Cowan, treasurer; Mrs. W. J. Clendenin, secretary of literature; Mrs. Z. L. Hesse, pianist; Mrs. F. J. Adams, chairman program committee, and the hospitality committee consists of Mrs. J. J. Davis, Mrs. W. F. Carmichael, Mrs. T. J. Eiler and Mrs. N. W Griffin. In the forenoon a very interesting and comprehensive address was given by Mrs. David Black on the Indians. She said there were 300,000 Indians in the United States and 10,000 in California who have never heard the gospel. California has about 40,000 Indians altogether. In the afternoon Mrs. Robert Waugh also talked of the American Indian, giving an account of her experiences among the Ute Indians when her husband was a government agent and while living among them she tried to help them all she could along missionary lines. She spoke of Indian life on the reservations, telling of their quaint customs and their religious and social dances she described in detail. She told of some of the wonderful old Bibles that had been given to the Indians in 1717 by the first Presbyterian ministers who came to this country and have since been carefully preserved by them, and she showed photographs of some of these Bibles and their Indian caretakers. Mr. Waugh's last work among the Indians was with the Stockbridge and Muncey tribes in Wisconsin. Most of these latter Indians are educated and self supporting and many of them still hold to their Presbyterian faith, although they had had no church for twenty-five years.

Cameron Johnson, the noted missionary traveler and lecturer, gave an absorbingly interesting address on "Korea's Roli of Honor." The missionaries of whom he spoke he knew personally when Korea was first opened to missionaries thirty-two years ago. Some he had known in college and they belonged to the student volunteer movement when it was organized in Nashville, Tenn., in 1891. Some of these men and women are still working out there while others have finished their work and gone to their reward, and Mr. Johnson had many interesting things to tell of their life and work.

The special musical number of the afternoon was a duet by Mrs. Frank Lilly and Miss Clara Waugh.

DOING BIG BUSINESS

In spite of the inclemency of the weather the Glendale Poultry Exchange, 316 S. Brand Blvd., is doing a good business. That there was need in Glendale for such a poultry exchange is proved by the scores of inquiries received daily by Mr. Battey.

EPISCOPAL AUXILIARY

The woman's auxiliary of the Episcopal church will meet at the home of Mrs. R. H. Wells, 1504 W. Broadway, at 2 o'clock Thursday, Feb. 22.

The greater the man the more vicious the snarl of the small enemy. —Chicago American.

STUDIES IN PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

By Walt. Le Noir Church

STUDY XXVIII.—GLENDALE DEVELOPMENT

"The Chamber of Commerce is supposed to embody the civic spirit of the community," remarked one of Glendale's old citizens yesterday, "but sometimes in a certain stage of development between extreme conservatism (if not retrogression) and awekening progressivism, it may be difficult to find a Chamber of Commerce which will truly represent the whole community."

"Glendale is in a peculiar condition, not recognized by some of her best citizens, who perhaps have not considered the matter from this standpoint. For a time Glendale's progress was so rapid that it required little or no effort to get business at a profit. But after the slump the majority of Glendale's citizens, perhaps, did not readily adjust themselves to the change. Many still expect business to get profitable again without any concert of action to bring it about. The real need for a Chamber of Commerce is to awaken these good citizens to a realization of the actual situation as it is, and if possible, bring about some co-operation that will develop the get-together spirit and do the things needed to restore business to a normal condition, for the benefit of all concerned. It can be done—easily done, and in a short time.

"That is a long speech for me," he added, laughing at his own enthusiasm, "but I have studied the situation carefully and I believe I have stated it correctly."

Now our Chamber of Commerce is so reorganized that it is ready to look after the interests of the rancher, the workman, the professional man, the general business man and the banker. Those interests are all in common, taking the long view, considering reaction as well as action.

A loyal civic pride and home spirit would soon demonstrate all this to the satisfaction and revived business of all avocations.

One solid business center will radiate prosperity over a much greater area than can two un-solid business centers aggregating the same numbers, wealth and opportunities, but weakened by conflict, or apathy, which is even worse. Conflict shows life, at least, while apathy hints at a dead one. But it is never too late to get together, and take a fresh start. Why not do that now, since your Chamber of Commerce is making a definite, decided, strenuous, intelligent effort at better things for Glendale as a whole—not for any section or clique or individuals. The tendency of city life is to develop individual helplessness along certain lines, and the cure or preventive is team work—co-operation, get-together-hood. That is the only safeguard.

Each city has its own problem of growth and of prosperity. What is Glendale's? "Overcome your apathy," says one D. F. M.—doctor of fading municipalities—not likely to die outright, but liable to become so depleted of financial circulating medium, that—well, business could be better. Now comes an important question. Is there anything essentially lacking in Glendale population which will make such civic co-operation and teamwork improbable, if not impossible? The best and oldest and most experienced citizens say no. That is echoed by the younger business men who actively realize that our salvation from further business stagnation is in willing co-operation, the sooner the better for all interested. The Glendale Chamber of Commerce has a plan. Ought we not, as good citizens, lend a hand to that plan, or suggest a better one?

But it is said that cities are like women, no two alike, and no one the type of any other one on earth below, in heaven above, or in the waters under the earth. There comes the eternal obstructive question: "Why do what you don't want when you don't have to?" That closes any argument of efficiency, folding its hands and dropping off to sleep again. It takes force, self-developed and self-exerted to overcome our natural, inherent, overpowering laziness, which yields only to necessity. "Let George do it," adding under the breath—"I don't mind profiting by his sacrifice." A lot of human nature in that. Open confession is good for the soul; also for the body, after the doctor has been called.

Mr. Lee of First National bank said to him the strong point about Glendale is its central location as to Los Angeles, the ocean and other places of interest, together with the fact that Glendale has the cream of all their climate, and the sour milk of none.

A lady says: "Glendale has the most desirable homesites in either hills or the valley, where everything needed grows, so you can get good value for your investment in land."

Another, a High School girl, exclaimed:

"Glendale, the Beautiful!
A jewel in the dale!
A gem in the glen!
A pearl on the hillside!
The heart-home city."

(Can you beat it?)

RECREATION CENTERS

On every hand we find society preserving itself by means of sociological institutions for recreation purposes. We find society recognizing and realizing the recreative and reformatory power of properly directed recreation.

Let every city establish big, open spaces for recreation centers, where gray-haired men and women, as well as children from their walking period to the age when they have the "baseball craze," may enjoy various athletic games, either participating themselves or watching them, and where they may have social affairs.

Let there be rural recreation centers established where farmers can convene for proper pastime, athletic amusement and sport. Country boys often leave the farm because they do not get enough social and athletic influence in the way they desire.

The educational value of athletic plays is found in the fact that they develop personality, encourage self-expression and socialize the individual. He plays with others and for others. It develops muscular control, strengthens volition, develops sagacity, resourcefulness and quick decision.

Seattle has during the past five years spent $5,000,000 on parks and municipal playgrounds. It is the only city on the Pacific coast to have a municipal bathhouse and extensive free recreation and play devices on its beach.

Milwaukee's mayor recently sent a special message to the city council advising a municipal recreation center to cost upwards of $1,000,000. They have adopted a plan by which no home in the city is farther than one-half mile from a park or playground.

The mayor of Cleveland and his wife recently led the opening dance in a new municipal dancehall.

In the world-famed South park system of Chicago two great principles are recognized—park beauty and utility as a playground. The social need is met by providing a place for rest and for play. The plans include trained recreation leaders to go with adults on Saturday afternoon rambles; also play festivals bringing together old and young of all nationalities. There are efficient directors for every activity, including "playground mothers" for the babies.—By C. L. Schufeldt.

TROPICO TRUSTEES

CITIZENS ON PALMER AVENUE SUCCEED IN HAVING STREET NAME RESTORED

The trustees of the City of Tropico met in regular session at the city hall Tuesday evening at 7:30. Trustees Peters, Alspach, Henry, and Seal were present, Trustee Veselich being absent. City Clerk Coleman, City Attorney Shaw, City Engineer Wattles and Health Officer Mabry were also present.

The fire chief reported that the two fire hydrants at Victor Court and La Brae street were connected on 2-inch mains and recommended that they be removed across the street and connected to the 4-inch main. The fire chief was instructed to have the Water company make the change. It was also brought before the board that there was a space of fifteen hundred feet on Glendale avenue that did not have a fire hydrant close enough to reach a fire in that district. The fire chief was instructed to remove the fire hydrant from Acacia avenue to the alley on Glendale avenue about midway between Park avenue and Cypress street.

The city engineer presented a map establishing certain parts of the Forest Lawn cemetery and a strip of land along Glendale avenue near the cemetery. On motion of Trustee Henry Map No. 3210 was adopted by the board.

City Health Officer Mabry reported favorably on the application of Mary L. Moon to sell milk in Tropico and on motion a permit was granted.

The permit of Mr. Baker to erect a fruit stand at the corner of Park and Brand boulevard was denied.

A petition was presented to the board signed by quite a number of residents on Moore avenue signifying their willingness to having the name of Moore avenue changed to that of Palmer avenue. On motion the city attorney was authorized to draw up an ordinance making the change. Thus a very disagreeable circumstance comes to a satisfactory settlement.

The application of Mr. Logan to remove three pepper trees from in front of his property near Brand on Cypress was heard and permission granted. No other business came before the board and adjuonrment was taken.

HIS EPITAPH

A recent automobile accident in an up-state county resulted in the death of the driver and the injury of two passengers.

The coroner summoned several witnesses, among them a farmer living near the scene of the accident. There was voluminous testimony regarding the high speed at which the car traveled. Witnesses said, too, that the road was in bad repair. The coroner finally reached the farmer who lived near the scene.

"What would you say about this accident, Mr. Swiggart?" the coroner asked.

"Well, if I was writin' that young man's epitaph," the witness drawled, "I'd say he died tryin' to git sixty miles a hour out of a ten-mile road."—Indianapolis News.

A visitor at an insane asylum wanted to know of a husky guard if he was not afraid of being attacked by some of the more violent inmates.

"I should say not," answered the self-confident individual. "I can handle any man in the institution with ease."

"But suppose they should co-operate?" suggested the visitor.

"If they could co-operate," airly answered the guard, "they would not be here."

GLENDALE'S BEST ADVERTISEMENT

Do the people of Glendale and vicinity realize what it is going to mean to entertain here the Los Angeles County Christian Endeavor's Twenty-fifth annual convention?

The chairman of advance registration is hard at work and has set his mark for 5000 registered delegates and the present indications are that the goal will not be missed by far.

In the past years this great convention has been entertained in somewhat of a turn about fashion between Pasadena, Whittier, Long Beach and Pomona, but this year Glendale has been favored for the first time.

To do just as much as others have done would be no particular credit to us, but we are going to be called upon to do a little more because we have no auditorium large enough to seat this big crowd.

Therefore, it will be necessary to rent a tent 89 feet wide and 131 feet long, to rent chairs for the same, to build a platform to seat 150 singers, to wire the tent for light, to move pianos and to do many other things which the other cities have not had to do.

In round figures this extra expense we are called upon to bear amounts to four hundred dollars.

If Glendale people could realize the number of large posters that have been sent to every corner of Los Angeles county, inviting 10,000 Christian Endeavorers to Glendale, the amount of correspondence that has been carried on, and how Glendale March 16, 17, 18 has been talked for months past they would gladly assume their part in paying for such valuable publicity.

FATHERS AND SONS

EVERY MAN TO TAKE A BOY TO SERVICE AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH TONIGHT

Tonight will be Fathers' and Sons' night at the special services now in progress at the First Methodist church. Every man who attends is expected to bring a boy with him. At the meeting last night there was some scurrying around by men looking for boys. Mothers and wives and sisters and everybody else will, of course, be interested in and are cordially invited to this service.

Tomorrow night will be Mothers and Daughters' night when every woman attending will be expected to take a girl.

In spite of the weather conditions last night there was a good spirit in the meeting and an encouraging attendance. Mr. Guice preached on the text, "Behold I send the promise of the Father upon you, but tarry ye in the city until ye be clothed with power from on high." Luke 24:49. "Some people have an idea that the baptism of the Holy Ghost was only for the early church. That is not true. Peter said: 'The promise is to you and your children and all who are afar off.'

"I shall not enter into an argument as to how men receive the Holy Ghost. My concern is your need of the fulfillment of the promise in your life. Church members are weak and sickly, their lives do not count in a vigorous way for righteousness because they are powerless.

"The difficulty today is we expect too little from young men. They can play fast and loose with morals, betray innocent girlhood and then be received into the homes of the community. The wonder is young men are as good as they are when we expect so little of them. But to be what they ought to be they need the power of which I am speaking.

"The young woman in the social set needs power to resist the temptations thrown around her. She is not bad. She sees nothing but a 'good time.' It is hard for her to be her best in a card playing, gambling, dancing, frivolous, frothy crowd. She doesn't know how to say no. Her friends throw temptations in her way and try to drag her from anything worth while, anything ennobling, anything that will make her life count for right and God.

"Parents need the Spirit's power. The inconsistent lives of parents turn their children from God. You owe more thought and courtesy to your husband than to any other woman's husband. You owe more kindness and gallantry to your wife than you do to another man's wife. Your religion must get into your home. What you are in your home you are.

"There is need of the Spirit in business life. Men forget God in the shop and store and sell this stuff and that because 'there is money in it.' They act as if business were one thing and religion were foreign to business. Men rob God and classify it as good business. They over reach and gouge their fellows because 'there is money in it' and 'it is good business.' That is what the saloon keeper says. The man who makes the same argument as the saloon keeper is no better than the saloon keeper. The man who will ditch God for so-called good business is in a bad way.

"All need the power of the Holy Spirit in their Bible study. Come across, tell the truth now. Do you love to read your Bible? I studied Greek and Hebrew and thought I could not understand the Bible without them. But you do not need them to understand the Scriptures. I thought I needed all kinds of commentaries on the Bible. But you do not need them, what you need is the Holy Spirit. You need Him in your prayer life and in your efforts to win men to God."

Mr. Snudden will preach tonight. His subject will be "Rules of the Road."

A CROP THAT PAYS

"Suds is the crop," said Farmer Jones, "the crop that brings the silver bones—the kale for which the farmer hones." "No, sir," said Sweet, "give me the beet. It pays for all the things we eat, for shoes to fit the children's feet; the beet pays for the light and heat and puts us all on easy street." "You're both mistook," said neighbor Lee, "for if you'd look you'd surely see there's gold in wheat; wheat's what made me. Whatever anyone can see in any other crop beats me; give me wheat," said neighbor Lee. "Sure, wheat's all right," said old man Wood. "No use to fight 'cause spuds are good, and beets ain't bad, they bring the mon and digging them is sure some fun; the beet man's work is never done. But as for me," said old man Wood, "alfalfa blossoms sure smell good. Alfalfa's king of all the crops, it beats the spud and wheat and hops." "I see you're just a little off, all money mad," said Deacon Goff. "At spuds and beets I can but scoff and ask you, gentleman, to doff your beavers to the crop that's worth more than all other crops on earth. I'm speaking, men, of girls and boys, that bring the farmer sweeter joys than Henry Ford with his tin toys. Give me the kids and take your wheat and hay and spuds and sugar beets!"—By W. S. Valpon, State Leader of Boys' and Girls' Clubs, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colorado.

A TOAST

I raise my glass to the vanquished ones,
On life's rough waters tossed;
To the ones who clinched and never flinched,
To the ones who played—and lost.

I raise my glass to the useless ones,
Life's driftwood, pushed aside;
To the ones men shun—the men who won
And forget how the others tried.

I raise my glass to the tired ones,
"Too tired now," they say;
To the ones who worked and never shirked,
Whom the world would not repay.

I raise my glass to the silent ones,
Who suffer and never speak;
To woman's pain when love is vain,
To the baffled and the weak.

To all who quaff of that bitter cup
The Savior prayed to pass,
To their bloody sweat, their stern regret—
To them I raise my glass.

—Gladys Hall.

PRUNING LEMON TREES

J. D. Culbertson, expert grower of lemons at Santa Paula, has experimented largely in pruning methods. He says regarding pruning:

"Where heavy pruning is undertaken whitewash should be used freely and promptly to prevent serious sunburn of large limbs and trunk. This is very important. Paint with asphaltum all large cuts, fumigate cautiously when the new growth has just begun, and spray with similar care."

Teacher—Now, Clarence, can you tell me what can't is the abbreviation of?

Clarence—It's the abreviation of cannot.

Teacher—That's right. Now Edgar, what is don't the abbreviation of?

Edgar—Doughnut.

A BETTER SEED BED

As the years go by, better methods of preparing the soil have demonstrated that better crops may be raised independent of the application of fertilizers. Supposedly worn out lands that have been seeded to grain crops for a generation, and whose production has fallen so low as to no longer yield a profit to the farmer have been made to produce better crops simply by deeper and more thorough pulverization at seeding time. Of course crop rotation and the plowing under of a green crop, preferably some legume, occasionally means a return to the original state of greatest production if persisted in, but if for the present year a crop must be raised without such aid, then the greatest care should be taken in the preparation of the seed bed.

Every experienced farmer knows that seed sown on roughly plowed ground and harrowed once or twice with the usual spike-tooth harrow does not have a fair fighting chance to return a profit to the sower. Only the most favorable weather conditions will enable such practice to return much more than the cost of seeding and harvesting. By the use of the disk harrow better conditions for growth were possible, and the value of better soil preparation became apparent.

With the advent of the tractor better methods become possible than ever before. Deep plowing and thorough pulverization when the soil is in the pink of condition means much for success in grain farming. Rapidity of work has been recognized as a main factor in modern farming. A tractor that will draw plows, harrows and some form of clodmasher at one operation means the rapid formation of a seed bed in which the seed will germinate readily and root freely, because of the fine condition of the soil and the availability of the elements of growth to the rootlets of the plants.

The best possible tools for pulverizing the soil are none too good for the grain farmer, and particularly so if unhappily he is located on lands that contributed to California's big grain crops half a century ago. A recent invention of a tool called a "rotary tiller" indicates some progress in the direction of better seed bed preparation. It consists of a toothed rotor placed in a position to engage with the soil as it leaves the plow and liberally pulverizing it by its rapid revolutions before it drops to its place in the furrow. Whether this particular tool will be practical or not remains to be determined by use on various farms and soils, but its invention plainly indicates the trend of thought among agriculturists toward better methods of farming.

"IT'S ALL IN THE DAY'S WORK"

A man's point of view and his mood toward life have, after all, everything to do with what his life is to mean to himself and to other men. My thought is that this common, everyday phrase, "It's all in the day's work," may well indicate both mood and point of view.

Five suggestions, it may be said to contain: The true view of life is not the ascetic view; nor the attitude of self-pity; nor the point of view of medieval chivalry, with its faith in the aristocracy of persons, even in attempted service; but the straight-forward taking on, with cheer and courage, of whatever is involved in the goal one has set himself.

That a man should say: "It's all in the day's work" has a still further vital bearing on his outlook in life. So saying, one should mean that he takes all that comes, pleasant or painful, bitter or sweet, as simply involved in the work assigned, in the trust assured, in the ideal cherished, in the kind of man he purposes to be. He has chosen his goal, and whatever is necessary to that goal he takes as a simple matter of course.

He finds St. Paul, I think, expressing with exactness his own point of view: "I count not myself to have laid hold; but one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal."

One's sufferings, and sacrifices, appear in a different light when one looks at them as simply involved in the goal that he himself has chosen. Though the point of view is neither that of the medieval knight, nor that of the modern aristocrat, it is still not a dull and hopeless drudgery to which a man is doomed. The goal illumines all the course toward it. It is all in the day's work.—By Henry Churchill King, President of Oberlin College.

A LITTLE BIT OF EVERYTHING

Rockland, Me., yearly produces 1,000,000 barrels of lime.

It costs Holland about $3,000,000 a year to maintain its dikes.

Sacramento (Cal.) business men have formed a Barefoot league for health and amusement objects.

The skin of the whale in places has been found, it is said, to be as much as two feet in thickness.

Canada's 1915 crop yield is valued at $800,000,000, with wheat heading the list at more than $312,000,000.

AND THEN THEY MIXED

Casey decided to go into business, so he bought out a small livery stable and had a painter make a sign for him showing him astride a mule. He had his sign placed in front of the stable and was quite proud of it. His friend Finnigan happened along and stood gazing at the sign.

"That's a good picture of me, ain't it?" asked Casey.

"Sure, it looks something like you," said Finnigan, "but who the devil is the man on your back?"

DIPLOMATIC PRUDENCE

Stern Parent—"Young man, can you support a family?"

Johnson (meekly) — "I only wanted the young lady."

PROVED THAT HE WAS

"Say, do I look like an easy mark?"

"No, you don't," replied the smooth confidence man. "You look to me like a person who is out of place in this hidebound community. If my knowledge of character hadn't convinced me that you have initiative, business ability and the courage to play for big stakes I never would have picked you out as the only man in town who deserves to make a million dollars."

"Ahem! Well, let's hear what your scheme is."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Truly man made the city, and after he became sufficiently civilized, not afraid of solitude, and knew on what terms to live with nature, God promoted him to live in the country.—John Burroughs.

AND STILL SHORT OF TIME

He—"Good heavens! The clock just struck one and I promised your mother I'd leave at twelve.

She (comfortably)—"Good! We've eleven hours yet."

TAKE TIME TO LIVE

Take time to live;
The world has much to give
Of faith and hope and love:
Of faith, that life is good,
That human brotherhood
Shall no illusion prove;
Of hope, that future years
Shall bring the best, in spite
Of those, whose darkened sight
Would stir our doubts and fears:
Of love, that makes of life,
With all its grief, a song;
A friend, of conquered wrong;
A symphony, of strife.
Take time to live,
Nor to vain mammon give
Thy fruitful years.

Take time to live;
The world has much to give
Of sweet content; of joy
At duty bravely done;
Of hope, that every sun
Shall bring more fair employ.
Take time to live,
For time has much to give,
Despite the cynic's sneer
That all's forever wrong.
There's much that calls for song!
To fate lend not thine ear.
Take time to live;
The world has much to give.

TOO PROMISING

A newspaper remarked that a citizen who had just died had been a promising young man. A life insurance solicitor who read the item remembered that the man had been promising and promising for months to insure his life. He was too promising.—Court of Honor.

HONEST AND EARNEST

Before the fire Christmas eve two old maids were planning for the holiday.

"Sister Molly," said the younger, "would a long stocking hold all you'd want for a Christmas gift?"

"No, Elvira," said the elder, "but a pair of socks would."

A GLIMPSE OF HEAVEN

A little boy, about ten years old, was standing before a shoe store in Broadway, bare-footed, peering through the window and shivering with cold.

A lady riding up the street in a beautiful carriage, drawn by horses finely caparisoned, observed the little fellow in his forlorn condition, and immediately ordered the driver to draw up and stop in front of the store. The lady, richly dressed in silks, alighted from the carriage and went quietly to the boy and said:

"My little boy, why are you looking so earnestly in that window?"

"I was just asking God to give me a pair of shoes," was the reply.

The lady took him by the hand and went into the store and asked the proprietor if he would allow one of his clerks to go and buy a half dozen pairs of stockings for the boy. He readily assented. She then asked him if he would give her a basin of water and he replied "Certainly," and quickly brought it to her.

She took the little fellow to the back of the store, and, removing her gloves, knelt down and washed the little feet and dried them with the towel.

By this time the young man had returned with the stockings. Placing a pair upon his feet, she purchased him a pair of shoes and tying up the remaining pairs of stockings gave them to him and patting him on the head said:

"I hope, my little fellow, that you now feel more comfortable."

As she turned to go the astonished lad took her hand, and, looking up in her face with tears in his eyes, answered her question with these words, "Are you God's wife?"

WHAT ARE YOU HERE FOR?

If you've never made another have a happier time in life,
If you've never helped a brother
through his struggle and his strife
If you've never been a comfort to the weary and the worn,
Will you tell us what you're here for in this lovely land of mourn?

If you've never made the pathway of some neighbor glow with sun,
If you've never brought a bubble to some fellow heart with fun,
If you've never cheered a toiler that you tried to help along,
Will you tell us what you're here for in this lovely land of song?

If you've never made a comrade feel the world a sweeter place
Because you lived within it and had served it with your grace,
If you've never heard a woman or a little child proclaim
A blessing on your bounty—you're a poor hand at the game!

HEROISM AT HOME

Attired in a morning robe of delicate lace she heeded not the bitter tears that chased each other along the bridge of her nose and splashed upon the fried eggs that lay with the sunny side up before her. Regretfully her glance rested upon her husband, who sat opposite, nervously toying with his spoon.

"No, Annabel," he was saying, "I do not care for any of the baking powder biscuits you made with your own hands."

"George," she faltered, "did you not say before we were married—"

A sob temporarily choked her utterance.

"Th—that you would gladly die for me?"

"Did I say that?" he eagerly demanded.

"You did, George."

"Annabel," he said, in a hollow tone, "I am a man of my word. Can I trouble you to pass those baking powder biscuits? Thank you."

And without another word he courted death.

AHEM!

A late police magistrate was a most painstaking judge in all his cases, and in important ones it was his custom to defer summing up until the next sitting of the court. On one occasion he gave an exhaustive decision on a case, after which the lawyer for the plaintiff rose and questioned it.

"Pardon me," said his worship. "I cannot allow you to reopen this case after I have given my final decision. I may be wrong, but that is my opinion."

The lawyer quickly replied:

"Then, your worship, I know it is no use knocking my head against a brick wall. I suppose I must sit down."

The magistrate adjusted his eyeglasses, and, looking sarcastically at the lawyer, said:

"Sir, I know it is no use your knocking your head against a brick wall; but I may add that I know of no one who could perform such an operation with less injury to himself than you."—Case and Comment.

WHY THESE FOOLISH QUERIES?

Mother—"You were a long time in the conservatory with Mr. Willing last night, my child. What was going on?"

Daughter—"Did you ever sit in the conservatory with father before you married him?"

Mother—"I suppose I did."

Daughter—"Well, mother, it's the same old world."

GOOD HEARTED CABBAGE

A well-known expert in cooking encountered trouble in a certain community the other afternoon when she prepared to lecture at the Mothers' club. Her subject was "How to Cook." She began by telling how much a man appreciates good cooking, and then she proposed to give various recipes.

Among the first was one for coleslaw. "To have this best," began the lecturer, "take a good hearted cabbage and"—

At this point a young matron interrupted. She was eager to get all the information possible. "Tell me, please," she spoke up, "how is one to know the disposition of a cabbage?"

MODERNLY SPEAKING

The Sunday School teacher put to her class a number of questions touching the history of the cities mentioned in the Bible.

"What happened in Babylon?" was the first query.

"It fell," said one boy.

"And what became of Nineveh?"

"It was destroyed."

"And what of Tyre?"

"Punctured!"

A TOAST

Here's looking at those who look at me
When I feel the need of cheer;
Here's a hand for those that give me a hand.
When I'd stumble if none were near.

Here's a heart for those that show me a heart
When my own is too tired to beat;
Here's a boost for those that give me a boost
When I'm struggling to get on my feet.

Here's love for those that give me their love
When the world is charged with hate;
And here's to those that have done me wrong—
Let's wipe it off the slate.

A SOCIAL DISTINCTION

Casey had dropped in for a visit on Callahan, and during the course of his stay observed that Miss Callahan spoke several times of a chafing dish party she had attended the evening before.

Now Casey agreed with Callahan that the latter's daughter was putting on entirely too many airs; so, with a view to disconcerting her, he suddenly asked:

"An' phwat the divil is a chafing dish?"

"Chafing dish, Casey," said Callahan, with a sly wink at his visitor, "a chafing dish is a fryin' pan that's got into society!"—Chicago News.

WELL, YOU MIGHT SAY—

The day was hot and the sleepy class found it difficult to concentrate its attention on its tasks, although the history teacher did her best to make the lesson interesting.

"Now, girls," said she at last, "can you tell me why the great man was buried in Westminster Abbey?"

There was a long silence.

At last a girl put up her hand.

"Because," she answered solemnly and impressively, "he was dead!"

EASILY SHERLOCKED

"I gave that youngster of mine a toy printing press, a steam engine, a xylophone, a box of paints, and some other things to find out whether his tastes were artistic, mechanical, literary, or what—but the test didn't work"

"Why, what did he do with them?"

"Smashed them all up."

"Why, man, it's as clear as day—he's going to be a furniture mover."—Denver Post.

TIME TO GO

She—"What, O what, I ask you, would this world be without women?"

He—"Happy."

She—"And what would a party be without women?"

He—"Why, a stag-party."

She—"And what would a nation be without us women?"

He (looking about for the door)—"Why—stagnation, I suppose."—Agawan.

WHAT MUST HOT COFFEE BE?

A preacher was describing the "bad place." "Friends, he said, "you've seen molten iron running out of a furnace, haven't you? It comes out white hot—sizzling and hissing. Well—" (the preacher pointed a long, lean finger at the congregation). "Well," he continued, "they use that stuff for ice cream in Hades."—Lehigh Burr.
